Advice for finding Mr Right for single women who wish to someday

Excerpt From Introduction...

Haven met and associated with a lot of single women in my life, I have discovered that there are four different kinds of single women. The first kinds are single women whose whole existence is dependent on getting a man; I call them the needy ones. The second are those who want a man because every other woman they know has one, they are like children in a toy store; "I want that toy she's holding". The third are those who need a man for the long term; they are the 'if you love then you should put a stamp on it' kind of ladies. The last kind is the self sufficient single woman; having a man is at the bottom of her list. Now it does not matter which group you fall under because each of these groups has its advantages and disadvantages; even the needy group. I have learnt a lot from observing the various kinds of single women. The information I gathered from observing each of these groups of single women, helped define this book. This book explores the power and freedom of a single woman and also gives valuable advice to any single woman hoping to find love someday.
